Not Vacation, Catalyzation.

March 5th-12th, students across the US were celebrating their Spring Break. Many of them planned to catch up on some much needed rest, others were on their way to more exotic destinations, but one group of students had different plans. This combined team of Chi Alpha students from American and Virginia Commonwealth Universities was teaming up with Bible school students to advance construction at Instituto Bíblico Bethel, minister in area churches, and bless the people of Sierra Papacal.

But these Chi Alpha teams are valuable for more than their strong backs and servants' hearts. They serve as catalysts for new and continuing ministry.

2016 AU/VCU Mission Team

This trip was no exception. Interested in investigating the situation in secular universities in Mexico, the group sought out a time of prayer and fellowship with students on a local college campus. The resulting meeting stretched to more than three hours as the blended group worshiped together, encouraged one another, and prayed for each other. Truly, it was a shot in the arm for the campus fellowship that was at the point of disbanding.

So, 14 students returned home from Spring Break a bit worse for the wear. It's to be expected; they didn't have a vacation, they were participating in catalyzation, and we, along with many others here in the Yucatan, are grateful that they did!

Relate

This Holy Week sees our family scattering to the four winds, well, at least in three different places. Rebekah, Joseph and Jonathan are attending MK Retreat in Costa Rica and Kelly travels to the US to be with her mom during cataract surgery while Dave holds down the fort here in Mérida. Pray for safe travels!

The Gift That Keeps on Giving

In January, Light For the Lost funds enabled the District of Yucatan to purchase evangelistic literature and take bold steps forward in their scheduled outreaches throughout the state.

Recently, we've come to find that this gift has freed up resources to help establish places of worship in strategic cities. Check out our website to find out more: <http://goo.gl/JNrQKa>
