Persistence Pays Off.

Have you ever had a great idea that came to you before others were able or willing to take it seriously? Perhaps you even attempted to put it into practice, but you lacked the support to see it through. Let me encourage you to not give up, because persistence pays off.

Since 2012, when I stumbled upon church planting material from the Multiplication Network, I had the feeling that they were on to something that could revolutionize the way we do evangelism and outreach. Since that discovery, I'd been looking for an opportunity to introduce these ideas on a wider scale. On Friday, June 9, my opportunity finally arrived. That was when we held our first workshop:

"Sembremos Iglesias Saludables" (Let's Plant Healthy Churches)

I collaborated with fellow missionaries, Jerry Brown and Peter Breit, for this first session of training. As we went through the material, it was clear that it was striking a chord—providing solutions to overcome weakness in our traditional models. Finishing the workshop, there was a consensus among the attendees that they had been given a valuable tool.

Even more satisfying was what happened afterwards. Working together with my organizing team, we were able to secure the collaboration of several key leaders to keep the church planting process moving forward!

There is, of course, much still to do, but the fact remains that we have finally begun. Persistence pays off!

Relate

This summer means a rest from school for our family and some relief from the extreme temperatures as we enter the rainy season. Still, the rains bring mosquitos and the viruses they carry. Pray for our health and those of our partners, especially as we work with our teams coming from Southern Missouri!

Stretching our Limits!

This quarter saw us moving out of our comfort zones in a number of ways. From lending a hand to make the dream of a church playground become a reality to celebrating missions in the dark, there is so much more to discover about how God has been stretching our limits on our website. Follow the link to take a look!
